

Seedlang is a Berlin startup that is passionate about working at the intersection of education and technology. It is our mission to help people succeed on the difficult journey of learning a new language in a fun and effective way. We believe in bringing together innovative technology and authentic language learning content, produced by real people using real language.

Among other things, our website has a dictionary with over 8000 entries for the German language. Members of our community can ask questions about individual words and phrases, relying on native speakers to help them navigate the nuances of the German language.

For support in our German didactics team, we are looking for a part-time "German Didactics Support" (15-20 hours per week).

Your duties will include:

- Answering German vocabulary and grammar questions posted by users on the Seedlang forum.
- Researching and providing entertaining and interesting information about life in Germany and German-speaking countries.
- Documenting frequently asked questions.
- Contributing to our database and writing sample sentences for learning German vocabulary.

Your profile:

- You are studying German as a teacher or German linguistics as a major.
- You are a native speaker of German.
- You have a very good command of the English language.
- You are highly self-motivated, organized, and detail-oriented.
- You are good at working independently.
- You have a passion for teaching language.
- You have good interpersonal and communication skills, especially in teaching complex language topics.

We offer:

- A flexible part-time job (15-20 hours per week), most of which can be done online.
- A wage of €15 per hour.
- A friendly working atmosphere in a small, international team.
- Hands-on work experience in a growing startup.
- A challenging, fun and also rewarding work experience: you will be helping people all over the world learn a foreign language.

Have we aroused your interest?
